MAKING THE CASE TO YOUR EMPLOYER

Three considerations when approaching your employer:

- If possible, gain in-principle support from your manager in line with your strategic career goals within the company.
- A business case may be required as part of the request, or you may choose to submit one to demonstrate the seriousness of your proposal.
- Is there a procedure for requesting funding? Consult with your HR department or manager.

Three points to ask your employer to consider:

- Being flexible with your time to allow you to study.
- Permission to apply your learning to real world business situations at the company.
- Financial help to pay your tuition and other expenses.

Make sure to:

- Present a plan to your employer outlining your personal development at the company over the next 5 years, using the skills and knowledge gained on the program.
- Within the plan, outline what specific topics or problems you aim to address within the in-program reports.
- Build the idea into existing employee development programs.
- Make sure to have researched whether the tuition fee is tax deductible for the company.

BENEFITS FOR YOUR EMPLOYER

Studying at ESMT Berlin provides a number of benefits for your employer including:

- Employee personal growth potential to assist sustainable company growth
- Fresh input and new ideas
- Top talent retention
- Cross-cultural competencies via international collaboration
- Exposure to best practices at some of the world's most successful companies

EXECUTIVE MBA

Find out more

In consultation with companies and with ESMT faculty, EMBA participants develop a project that addresses a business or management issue of broader relevance. The project draws on empirical fieldwork and academic theories to develop real and immediate value for your organization, even before graduation.

LEADERSHIP FOR SENIOR MANAGERS

A cornerstone of the EMBA, the Leadership in Practice course runs throughout the program, and focuses on fine-tuning the competencies that executives need when leading teams, people, projects, and organizations.

You benefit from hours of individual coaching that would carry a significant standalone cost to your company. The program is designed to prepare you for senior and general management roles, it offers space to experiment, an individualized experience, and a greater focus on important interpersonal relationships. During the Leadership in Practice course you will experiment with multiple leadership styles, learn to adapt your leadership style based on context, gain greater focus on leadership than management, and focus on self-awareness. A dedicated faculty lead engages in individual, on demand, personal coaching sessions related to leadership and career topics.

- Executive and peer coaching opportunities are included.
- All leadership training takes place face to face, including four international modules for additional exposure.

You can use this opportunity to forge new networks in your organization, display your new skills to internal stakeholders, initiate change within your organization, gain personal visibility at broader and higher levels, and assume more responsibility for the development of the company.

The “in-company report” that takes place at the end of your studies is a great way to apply your learnings and improve the daily business operations of your current company.

Previous cases included

- Evaluating make/buy strategies for radical innovations in a complex manufacturing industry
- Identifying barriers to and incentives for adopting energy efficient technologies in the European steel industry
- Attracting and retaining a highly skilled workforce in emerging markets
- Increasing market share with multi-channel marketing: an approach to design and review distribution channels

Deciding to do an EMBA at ESMT was one of the most formative steps in my professional career. The case study approach and discussions in class opened up new perspectives. The concepts I learned help strengthen me as a person in a leadership position. The biggest value for me is the close relationships with classmates. My class was diverse in every sense, which showed me life and business from perspectives I was not aware of. Having a group of highly experienced peers to call on is definitely a competitive advantage in my professional life and for my company.

PART-TIME MBA

ESMT's Part-time MBA has been specifically designed to bring success in a rapidly changing world. Whether you are part of a mature corporation needing to stimulate disruptive innovation, or a start-up looking to scale up, this program will help you achieve the next phase of your personal and professional development.

Blended learning combines the best of online and face-to-face. You benefit from the flexibility of interactive online learning AND learn from peers and world-class faculty during the in-person modules. Every single course in the program integrates face-to-face and online learning. The ESMT Berlin Part-time MBA in Business Innovation is an ideal way to continue working full-time while gaining the knowledge and competencies to support, not only your personal development, but also the growth and transformation of your company. With the part-time program you are making an impact from day one. This is an opportunity to study at Germany's top-ranked business school, and apply your learnings to your day to day business, your management will see that your perspectives are shifting and changing, and that you are increasing your contribution to the business.

Requiring only 28 days out of the office over two years, the part-time MBA delivers its benefits with minimal disruption. If you work for a German employer you can take advantage of a program called Bildungsurlaub, paid educational leave, and the Part-time MBA is perfectly suited to fit within the program. It means you're not eating into your personal annual leave, and your employer does not have to live without you in the office for too long.

The Part-time MBA final project report is an ideal way to apply your learning to a business situation experienced by your company. You can leverage the knowledge and skills of your classmates and faculty to help conduct a report focusing on business innovation and transformation, and solve an issue faced by your company. You can put your skills to the test and demonstrate your learning from the course, and you get to solve a problem your employer is facing, a win for all parties.

The ESMT Berlin Part-time MBA program is specifically designed for individuals like me who want to maintain work-life balance while investing in self-development. I want to enhance my career and gain knowledge in management and entrepreneurship. As a mother, founder of a coffee startup – FreshBean – and software developer, my days are full! Time management, discipline, solving problems one at a time and a good cup of coffee are my keys to success.

The ESMT Berlin Global Online MBA is designed to teach you everything a modern decision-maker needs to be a successful leader. Combining general management with technology, innovation, and global experience electives, the program offers you a great deal of flexibility.

- Complete the program in as few as two years, or take up to five. It's up to you.
- Take the modules consecutively, or take breaks. You decide.
- Work full-time while gaining the knowledge and competencies to support your personal development, and the growth and transformation of your company.
- Apply what you have learned from day one. See yourself grow.
- Customize the program to your specific needs by taking advantage of optional add-ons such as personalized career coaching, the Berlin Experience Week, or the Global Experience Week. The choice is yours.

The Global Online MBA final project report is an ideal way to apply your learning to a business situation experienced by your company. You can leverage the knowledge and skills of your classmates and faculty to help conduct a report focusing on business innovation and transformation.

The Global Online MBA is taught through the online Learning Hub and Engageli, a start-of-the-art learning platform. These award winning teaching platforms allow for effective networking in an online environment.

The program has a unique and innovative curriculum structure that groups together courses to give you complementary – but distinct – perspectives on key business issues. For example, the three courses in Module 1 will help you make wiser decisions under uncertainty. You will learn how to apply quantitative techniques to decision making, how to address organizational issues that can prevent effective decision making, and how to evaluate the leadership implications of managerial decision making.

I chose the ESMT Global Online MBA because of the strong reputation of the school and the truly global nature of the program. The opportunity to learn and participate with like-minded classmates from across the world is an incredibly enriching experience.

Being able to share and learn from others with such amazingly diverse backgrounds has been rewarding and I am excited to continue the journey.
