ESMT Berlin strengthens cooperation with MIM Compass

ESMT Berlin and Master in Management Compass (MIM Compass) are extending their previous partnership.

The platform MIM Compass provides an overview of master in management degree programs that have been included in the Financial Times' Masters in Management Ranking. Therefore, students can inform themselves about the various universities and institutions as well as get relevant content on the study programs, application procedures, or career opportunities.

"Our mission is to provide graduates with in-depth knowledge about master in management programs," says Thomas Graf, founder of Master in Management Compass. "Business schools can present themselves on our platform and get in touch with prospective students. ESMT Berlin with its successful master in management program is part of the core of MIM Compass."

The cooperation of ESMT and MIM Compass includes a complete profile of the international business school as well as an overview of the ESMT Master in Management on the platform. Additional information for interested users, such as announcements of informative events, is also provided. "We look forward to many more years of great collaboration," says Rick Doyle, director of marketing at ESMT. "We are now planning to expand the partnership further and are already working together on other projects, such as experience reports from our students."

ESMT is ranked 12th globally in the Financial Times' Masters in Management Ranking 2021. The international business school has the highest ranked program of any university based in Germany.
